THE WHITE MAN'S DUTY.

In the poem of Mr. Kipling which so stirred our hearts a few months ago a large and fundamental truth is expressed. The white man has a burden to bear. There are and always have been in the ethnological classifications dominant and subordinate races. Islands and even continents bear witness to this fact. Not the most fertile nor the most comfortably situated nations have led in the civilization of the world. Africa is favored with a soil, with geographical, topographical and climatic conditions which might be supposed most favorable to make its people one of the prominent forces in the civilization and progress of the world. It was not the appointment of providence or nature but the character of the people themselves which has kept them a prey of other peoples and races. They are not recognized as a real element in the national forces of the world. They have no literature. Their language is crude and imperfect. Their condition is hardly worthy the name of civilization. That this is true no one can question. A subordinate and not a dominant race occupy this great, rich continent. The same is true of other regions of the world. We are bound, if we are true to the fact, to recognize that there are dominant and subordinate races.

The dominant, which is substantially the white race, has the burden to sustain of bringing civilizing and regenerating forces to bear upon the needy races. This is properly the white man's burden. But in a sense it is negative. He bears that which is imposed upon him by the very conditions of race peculiarity. He has more than simply a burden to bear. There is the white man's duty as truly as the white man's burden. His responsibilities are aggressive and positive and not simply negative and submissive.

In the alarming condition of our own country, especially in the Southern states, the Duty of the white man is written in the imperative. The work of the American Missionary Association, through its schools and churches and army of consecrated missionaries, has always been the elevation of the needy peoples among whom the work has been carried on. The agitation of political, social and even religious questions has not been the object of its effort. Nor is this the object to-day. The work would fail were this its object. The undeveloped races must become capable of holding their places in the competition with the dominant race as races, and not simply in individual cases, before they can attain this position of equality. The work lies with the depressed and undeveloped peoples primarily. Higher ideals, physical, intellectual and moral, must be established. But, notwithstanding this, the white man must face his own duties and accomplish his own work. The white man's duty includes, in the first place, self-control. The heinous crimes committed by Negroes in the South, or alleged to have been committed, are crimes that should receive the severest punishment of the law. If law is inadequate, the white man holds it in his power to correct this law and make it adequate. The brutal lynchings, which are in themselves a violation of law, are only a stimulus to the Negro to further violence. The white man's duty involves self-control. This he seems utterly incapable of in the South. Not only does he wreak vengeance on Negroes who are accused of crimes but upon neighboring white men who dare to stand for the legal punishment of crime. It is not that this course on the part of the dominant race is bringing discredit and disgrace upon us in all the nations of the world. This is unfortunate in itself, but it is not the primary evil. The fundamental trouble is that the dominant race is proving by these outrages that it lacks the very element of self-control which it demands of the other race. These crimes of the white man are the most discouraging phenomena of this century. They show that even with his boasted superiority and advanced civilization he has attained scarcely to the self-control of a savage. If crimes similar to those that are committed in the South were committed by the Indians of the prairie, it would be deemed sufficient for the wiping out of a whole tribe. But how much greater is the disgrace, the shame, the crime, when these outrages are committed by the white race, who should be the dominant factor of civilization!

The white man's duty also involves the considerate treatment of a weaker people. The undeveloped condition of the Negroes of the South results largely from the white man's neglect. He has deprived the black man of privileges that he might use him to better advantages for himself. The inevitable fruits of years of subjection in slavery, when the race was kept in enforced ignorance, are being reaped in the harvest of ignorance and lawlessness on the part of the Negro to-day. It is the white man's duty to educate and elevate those whom he has in the past robbed of natural privileges. It is not simply a burden thrown upon him which he must passively bear. It is a stern duty, for the accomplishment of which he must gird himself. Efforts should not be lessened but multiplied all over the South for the education and elevation of the subordinate races. It is the white man's duty and he fails not in philanthropy but in meeting the just demands of human society upon himself, if he does not accomplish this. It is not whether the black man shall meet his opportunity and be qualified to meet his responsibility, but whether the white man meets his opportunity and is qualified for his responsibility. The disgrace falls to-day not upon the black man but upon the white citizenship of the South. The white man's duty is at once to exercise self-control on his own part and to demand the exercise of the same on the part of other white men so that law shall be administered by courts and not by mobs. It is not a question of the innocence or guilt of those who are accused by mob violence. The disgrace and dishonor is upon the dominant race of America in view of these brutal outrages of the South. Every patriotic American ought so far as possible to utter his protest against the feebleness of a civilization that cannot hold the stronger and more intelligent element within the confines of the law.

A WORD OF THANKS.

We cordially acknowledge the kind words of appreciation for the April number of the American Missionary magazine which appeared in the columns of cotemporary journals. To the Congregationalist we especially owe acknowledgements for their pleasant word spoken in praise of both the form and matter in that number. We hope for constant improvement in each issue. The present number presents especially the view of the school work in the South both in lowlands and highlands. The illustrated articles present the work in typical schools, from the academy and primary school in the Black Belt to the comprehensive work of Straight University. The latter institution illustrates the comprehensiveness of the training given in our larger A. M. A. schools. It covers the ground from industrial training, careful and thorough, to instruction in Biblical and theological lines, fitting young men for the ministry. Those who are interested in this broad and comprehensive training must rejoice in the thought that the A. M. A. has many institutions in which this thorough training is furnished the young people who gather under their influence.

STRAIGHT UNIVERSITY.

BY PROFESSOR GEORGE W. HENDERSON, D.D.

Thirty years ago, with some assistance from the National Government, which was represented in the matter by that noble Christian soldier, Gen. O. O. Howard, Straight University began its beneficent career as an institution of Christian learning under the auspices of the American Missionary Association. The moment was wisely chosen.

Reconstruction was in its preliminary stages, the law having been passed by Congress two years previous. Order was gradually emerging out of chaos. Citizenship had already been secured to the freedmen by the Fourteenth Amendment, and the right to vote, which had been given them in the provisions for reorganizing the governments of the States lately in rebellion, was soon after confirmed by the Fifteenth Amendment. The lines along which the South was to reconstruct its industrial, social and political life were thus clearly defined. The freedmen were to be secured in their liberty, and in their civil and political rights. Henceforth all men were to be free, and all freemen were to be citizens of equal rights. This was the theory and philosophy of the reconstruction policy.

The next step was a question of duty for the Christian missionary and philanthropist, namely, what should be done to prepare the new citizens, poor and illiterate, and living in the midst of those hostile to their citizenship, for their new and weighty responsibilities? The reconstruction law has been subjected to much adverse criticism, but probably the one serious fault for which posterity will hold it responsible was the neglect to provide for a system of popular education to be controlled by the National Government.

The American Missionary Association came forward to repair, so far as possible, the mistake of political statesmanship, and in founding Straight University established the first chartered institution of learning in the Queen City of the South.

Like all schools for the freedmen, Straight opened with the primary grades. But the A. M. A. officers rightly believed that such was the native ability of its colored people, and such their eagerness to learn, that higher courses of study would soon be in demand, and results have fully vindicated their faith and foresight. In seven years from the founding, a class of eight was graduated in law; in six, the first normal class came out, and in ten, the first college class.

NORMAL DEPARTMENT.

The establishment of the public school system in the South soon after the beginning of reconstruction created a demand for teachers.

STRAIGHT UNIVERSITY, NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Hence, next to the grammar grade, attention was directed to the development of the normal department. About one hundred and twenty have been graduated from the very thorough course of study which has been maintained in this department, while a very large number, perhaps as many if not more than the graduates, have had the benefit of one or more years' instruction in the studies of the normal course without spending the required time for a diploma. Under this head may be mentioned some thirty-odd students who have completed the college preparatory course without going further, whose education, as it is practically equivalent to the normal course, has answered the same purpose.

COLLEGE DEPARTMENT.

The attendance in the college department has not been large, though some very good work has been done and has met a real demand. The main difficulties in the way of its development are the poverty of the students and the apparently limited opportunities for liberally educated men of color in the various walks of life. Many of our brightest young men, after struggling till they have got well along in years to finish the normal or college preparatory course, feel constrained by filial and brotherly affection to go out and earn money to support aged and dependent parents and give their younger brothers and sisters the same blessed educational advantages from which they have so greatly profited. But the more rapid development of the college department is only a question of time. To many of our ambitious youth it is like the Delectable Mountains, toward whose summit they are looking with longing and aspiring minds.

LAW DEPARTMENT.

For about ten years Straight maintained a flourishing law school, in which some seventy-five young men were qualified for the legal profession. In those days race lines were not so strictly drawn as at present, and as a consequence some of the white lawyers who have stood at the head of the bar in this city hold diplomas from this department. Quite a number of the colored graduates have also achieved deserved distinction in their profession. But social and political changes led to the suspension of the school. It is not true, however, that the demand has ceased; almost every year, and in increasing numbers, young men apply for admission to this department. At present there is no law school open to colored men nearer than Washington City. Good lawyers of color are quite as necessary to the maintenance of the civil and political rights of the race as good physicians are to the preservation of its health, or good ministers and teachers to the development of its moral and intellectual life.

THEOLOGICAL DEPARTMENT.

Elementary instruction in the essentials of a theological education was given from an early date, but as the demand was quite limited no systematic attempt to develop this department on the basis of a thorough course of study was made till the beginning of the present administration.

Since then the interest has been of a steady and encouraging growth. Over forty young men now doing good work in the ministry owe much of the impulse and interest, as well as the intelligence, which sustain them in their gracious work, to the instruction and influence of this department. Some of these had already become pastors, and were unable to pursue the whole course. Besides, owing to the limitations of poverty, most of the students have been compelled to pursue their studies in theology in connection with their normal or college courses. For these reasons only five have been graduated, which includes one who finished his course prior to 1890. But we have reached a point of development at present when we may reasonably hope to graduate a small but increasing class each year, and thus not only meet the demands of our Congregational pulpits, but do something to supply the wants of other denominations which have no schools of divinity in this part of the South. It may interest and perhaps surprise our Northern friends to learn that a young man of an excellent white family of this city has applied for admission to this department, and expects to take up the regular course next fall.

The present enrollment is twenty-three, twenty of whom will probably enter the active ministry or professions that require a scientific knowledge of theology and familiarity with the Scriptures and with methods of interpretation. The influence of this department upon the Congregational churches in this State has been marked and salutary. Nearly all the present ministers received their training in this and the other departments of the University. The churches of which they are pastors are like cities set on a hill. They have become centers of life, around which the moral and social elements have organized themselves into order and beauty. They have set the standard for other churches. They have married morality to religion; have inculcated temperance; have encouraged economy and industry, so that many of their members have become home owners; have softened or removed the prejudices and commanded the respect of the best white people, and demonstrated the capacity of the race for the best civilization. It is safe to say that no other equal number of young men in any other profession or with any other training has accomplished so much good as these young men who received their education for the ministry in our department of theology.

INDUSTRIAL DEPARTMENT.

Straight University believes in labor, in its dignity and educational value. A well-furnished carpenter's shop, under the management of an efficient superintendent, imparts to the boys so thorough a knowledge of the principles of wood-working that many of them are able to turn their knowledge to practical account during the vacations. The careful attention given to the sewing department has in view the preparing of the girls for the noble functions of housekeeping, and for the creation and maintaining of homes of comfort and refinement.

In fact, Straight never loses sight of the home as the center of social life, as the sanctuary of purity and virtue. The motherly care and love with which the lady principal teaches the girls the principles of good breeding, cleanliness of person and room, and neatness and good taste in dress, is based upon the assumption that the girls are to be the makers of the home, and through the home the saviors of the race in large measure.

We have also a well-equipped and efficient printing department, where The Olio, the University paper, and the University catalogues are printed, together with much other matter from the outside. Some of the graduates from this department are now earning living salaries as printers.

THE UNIVERSITY CHURCH.

The church is not properly a department of the University—it is rather its soul. It keeps the conscience of the school, for Straight is a missionary institution; the primary aim is not mere intellectual development, but Christian culture. The missionary theory is that education is the handmaid of religion. It is a means to a higher end, and not an end in itself. The church, therefore, is the sanctuary of the school, the center of its life, whose influence radiates in all departments, sweetening its social life and subordinating its intellectual activity to the principles of righteousness and Christian service. It thus impresses a distinctly Christian stamp upon all exercises.

There are three separate religious societies: a Young Men's Christian Association, a Young Women's Christian Association and an Endeavor Society, and two separate missionary societies—one for the boys and one for the girls. These are all vigorous organizations—training schools for the young people of inestimable value. We hardly have what is usually meant by a "revival." Conversions come without observation—certainly without the usual revival excitement—and the results are much more satisfactory. Young people ripen into the experience of faith, hope and love under the quickening and gracious influences of the church and the various religious societies, so that their confession is but the plucking of mature fruit. Every year toward the close, opportunity is given at some regular prayer meeting for the final decision, and it rarely happens that a student old enough to be thoughtful and serious spends two years with us without being gathered into the fold of the Good Shepherd. Bible instruction is given in all the departments of the University, and, through this as well as through personal effort and influence in the religious meetings, the teachers contribute greatly to the spiritual life of the church.

STRAIGHT UNIVERSITY INDISPENSABLE TO THIS SECTION OF THE SOUTH.

What Straight has done or is doing for Louisiana and adjoining States cannot be expressed in figures, nor estimated by the large number of graduates from the different departments. Probably for the last fifteen years or more the attendance has ranged between five and six hundred each year, so that a great host of young people has received the elements of an English education, has been quickened morally and made stronger for the serious work of life. They are scattered all over this section of the South where the colored population is especially dense, and are found in all the trades and professions. Many of them are successful and rising physicians; many of them are pharmacists and dentists; many in law and the ministry; and a large per cent. are teaching.

If we bear in mind the fact that the nine hundred and odd colored public schools are dependent almost wholly on the missionary institutions for properly-qualified teachers, and that Straight has furnished more than her proportion, her vital relation to the social, moral and intellectual life of the colored people of the Gulf States becomes strikingly apparent. But for the leading part her students have taken along these lines, the great progress of these thirty-odd years of freedom would have been impossible, and the friction between the white and colored race, which is even now so serious, would have been tenfold more perplexing and dangerous. The position of Straight as an institution unsurpassed in the quality of its work has often been recognized by Southern people. Last year the City Board of Education publicly complimented her graduates for the high standing they attained in the examination for city schools.

The first president of Straight University was Rev. Dr. Healy, an alumnus of the University of Vermont. After his retirement, Rev. J. A. Adams, now of The Advance, had charge of it for a short period. In 1876, Rev. Walter S. Alexander, D. D., became president, under whom the school took new system and vigor. In 1884, Prof. R. C. Hitchcock became the head, and added, during the six years of his administration, the industrial and printing departments, and materially enlarged the scope of its activities, Since 1890, President Oscar Atwood, also an alumnus of the University of Vermont, has been in supreme control. His administration has been distinguished by concentration, by the development of all the departments, and by the raising of the standards of scholarship to meet the constantly changing demands of the times. The late Hon. Seymour Straight, of Hudson, Ohio, whose honored name the University bears, was her generous friend to the close of his useful life.

What Straight has done is only preliminary to the greater work that lies before her. The demand for the college and professional courses grows apace, as the colored people realize more and more that the question of self-help, in which lies the preservation of their liberty and citizenship, must be wrought out under leaders of their own race in large part. Along this path lies the independence of character which is the foundation of selfhood. And that she may be able to continue, on a larger scale and in greater perfection, the noble educational ministry that distinguishes the thirty years of her history, for which the colored people cherish such deep gratitude, it is earnestly and ardently hoped that some philanthropist and patriot, wishing to benefit his kind and country by investing in some institution of learning that will yield sixty and a hundredfold in the noble fruits of righteousness, may furnish her the means to enlarge her buildings, increase her library and endow professorships.

THE NEGRO AS A PREACHER.

BY PRESIDENT J. E. RANKIN, D.D., HOWARD UNIVERSITY.

I have now been nine years, more or less, in intimate relation with the Theological Department of Howard University. I know pretty well the work done in it, and some of its ripe fruits. I have seen great progress on the part of the Negro preacher within that period. He is less emotional, more logical, more thoughtful. One of my own functions is to teach him how to read and how to interpret Shakespeare. I wish this were better done. I remember the day when Hon. James Meacham, who died Member of Congress from Vermont, introduced Shakespeare as a text-book for the Seniors in Middlebury College. It was regarded a great innovation, if not revolution. It was thought hardly proper to study Shakespeare openly. But to think of making such an author a text-book in a Theological Seminary, probably even Prof. Meacham would have hesitated. But Shakespeare touches the Bible at many points: say, for example, the prayer of Hamlet's uncle, and St. Paul's psychology of man, as presented in the text: "When I would do good, evil is present with me."

But, in the same spirit, lessons in reading are taken from Cowper, from Daniel Webster, from Ralph Waldo Emerson; from Longfellow, Whittier and Lowell. It will thus be seen that the English standard and ideal here are rather intellectual than emotional. The truth is, that some of the best trained minds which have graduated from the University within the last nine years have gone forth from the Theological Department. If I should speak frankly, not a few of these have come here from the West Indies; young men, who have already, at home, received the benefit of contact with elegant English speech, and who, although deficient in some of these gifts of self-help, which characterize the American, either black or white, have especial fitness for public utterance, whether in the pulpit or at the bar.

We have all denominations here. We glory in this, that our treatment of the subject of denominations is comparative. We have no high churchism; not even Congregational. Our chapel-services on the Lord's Day are administered mostly by the President, assisted by the Professors in the Theological Department; men of New England birth and training, whose discourses are always intended to be thoughtful and instructive, and, I hardly need add, never of the old-style plantation order. Now and then we have preachers from Washington pulpits, such as Dr. Hamlin of the Church of the Covenant, and Rev. Ross Fishburn of the Mt. Pleasant Congregational Church; the same, also, from some of the Afro-American pulpits. But, without a single exception, as far as I can recall, all of these preachers have illustrated a kind of preaching, free from boisterous utterance, and in harmony with Hamlet's advice, against overstepping the modesty of nature.

After three years, some of our college graduates, who have been studying theology here or elsewhere, come back for the Master's degree. The work they have done, the theses they present, show that their aspirations are along solid lines. I have in hand for examination at this time a thesis from a young man who is in the Episcopal service, Dean of a college in Tennessee, which presents very strong and substantial reasons why the colored student should go to Africa as a preacher. In the paper occurs this passage:

"God requires the best service of all the races: and that service which is rendered to our brothers and sisters in need is the best service. Therefore God requires the Negro race to go to Africa. Besides, what has thus far been done to evangelize the earth has been done by the other races. It is reasonable, right and just, that representatives of the Negro race should be prominent there: a field, as Victor Hugo says, where the greatest victories of Christianity are yet to be won."

The whole argument in this thesis for the Master's degree, is moral and spiritual. I remember that, nine years ago, the question of missionary work in Africa had to be handled here with great delicacy; as though somebody might be jealous of being pushed off to the Dark Continent. Since then, we have heard upon our chapel-platform returned missionaries from Africa—notably, Mr. Shepard of South Carolina—whose address was so attractive and persuasive and stirring that the students, having listened one hour, adjourned for lunch, and came back to have the address completed. That the question is now considered here, not from any political aspect—such as this country belongs to us, as much as to the white man—but from the standpoint of the Master Himself, when He said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature," is very apparent. That means great progress. Our material for preachers is improving every year. This year we number about 50. While we have inferior men—men, too, whose previous preparation is very inferior—while we conscientiously maintain a night school for those who can not be classified in the Department, still, a larger and larger number of College graduates enter the Department year by year, and frequently, some of our brightest students are Anglo-Saxons, who come here for the crumbs that fall from our well-spread Theological tables, and who are just as welcome as though they were born under tropical stars!

That the young men who are studying theology here have a deep sense of the privilege and blessedness of their work; and that those who in the last nine years have gone forth, have been each year advancing; are better and better qualified for work here or in Africa, or even in Porto Rico or the Philippines, if God should so ordain, I do not for one moment doubt. That the colored man has concluded that he, too, has a burden, is just as certain.

IN THE BLACK BELT.

Dorchester Academy—A Small School and a Great Work.

WARREN G. WATERMAN.

Down among the swamps of Southeastern Georgia, in historic Liberty County, is located one of the most interesting of the schools supported by the American Missionary Association. Although not one of the largest or most widely influential of the schools under the Association, it has been wielding a powerful influence in a region where such an influence is greatly needed and is deeply felt. The very name recalls New England, and on inquiry we learn that the village of Dorchester, ten miles away, was founded by colonists from the New England Dorchester who came to Georgia early in the eighteenth century. The present Dorchester, though still regarded locally as the metropolis of the county, is composed of only a dozen or two houses. These, however, are very much better than the one-story log cabins or unpainted frame shanties scattered through the pine forests and cypress swamps which form the chief features of the landscape in Liberty and the adjacent counties. A relic of the early days still stands in the shape of the Midway Church. It is the third building to occupy the site, the first having been built of logs and the second burned in the Revolutionary War. These were replaced by the one still standing. It has been condemned, however, and is occupied only once a year when the descendants of the original settlers meet for a memorial service at which is used the old communion plate brought from New England or perhaps from Old England itself. At the side of the church is the picturesque graveyard, surrounded by a wall built of bricks brought over from England. It is now overgrown with underbrush and shaded by massive live oaks, and the inscriptions on the gravestones, some dating back to 1740, can be deciphered with difficulty. Inside, the church is similar to the New England church of the same period except for the large slave gallery in horseshoe shape, reached by a separate entrance and a boarded-in stairway.

WAYSIDE CABIN, MCINTOSH, GA.

This was for the nine hundred slaves who were considered as members of the church with the three hundred white members. In this unusual feature we find, perhaps, one of the causes of the morality, sobriety and industry of the negroes in this vicinity.

OLD MIDWAY CHURCH.

To Dorchester Academy and to the A. M. A. Church associated with it, must also be attributed a large share in this work of uplifting. From its establishment in 1871 the school for many years did work only in primary and grammar grades, but it has now a good normal department with about 35 pupils, with 50 in the grammar, 100 in the intermediate and 250 in the primary grades. All the students come from Georgia and the majority of them from Liberty County, and a strong foundation of Christian morality is given them which stands them in good stead when they return to work at their homes or go out to teach or to pursue their education to higher grades in other institutions.

MC INTOSH SCHOOL, GA.

The school buildings consist of a recitation building, put up for use rather than for beauty, which, although recently enlarged, is still inadequate to the needs of the school; and the church, one hundred yards to the south, is used on week days by one of the primary grades. Between these two buildings, and at the rear of the campus, is the shop in which in a modest way the industrial training of the boys is attended to, while the girls have their sewing classes in the recitation building. The boys are now preparing to build an addition to their sleeping accommodations on the "boys' side" of the campus. On the other side are situated the teachers' home, girls' house and boarding hall, all modest frame buildings, but appropriate to the quiet but thorough work done by the school.

Liberty County contains about nine thousand colored people, forming sixty-five per cent. of the total population. Ignorance may prevail, but there is a desire to learn, and there is a peaceable and good-natured spirit quite different from the friction which is so often found where the races are more equally represented. Although the colored people are industrious and many of them own their own land and grow cotton, cane and rice, prices are low and money is scarce. Produce takes the place of cash, and tuition charges are frequently paid in poultry, vegetables, or "fat pine" for the academy fires. Eggs have a fixed value of one cent apiece no matter if they sell at eight cents or twenty by the dozen. At the McIntosh post office there is an egg-box to hold the eggs that are brought in in payment for stamps, and eggs frequently appear in the church and Sunday-school collections—as the treasurer has sometimes had occasion to remember with sorrow while carrying the collection home in his pocket.

INDUSTRIAL BUILDING, MCINTOSH, GA.

Owing to this poverty of the country people, the school is doing a very helpful work in securing donations of half-worn clothing from friends in the North and selling the clothes to the people at rates suited to their means. The second story of the shop is the "clothes room," and there several hundred dollars have been taken in in sums of ten, twenty and thirty cents. While the sums seem small they are large to the purchasers and it is really a help upward to be able to secure nice clothing at rates within their means, instead of the ragged makeshift garments they would otherwise wear.

Church services are held all the year around although the attendance, of course, is much greater during the session of the school. The Sundays are almost too full to be restful, beginning even Saturday night with a Bible class for the whole school which takes up in advance the Sunday-school lesson of the next day. But no one feels that anything can be omitted, as all the exercises implant the lessons of Christian service and produce Christian character which will tell on the community when the young people go forth to their life-work.

THE ESKIMO BULLETIN.

THE ONLY YEARLY IN THE WORLD.

VOL. IV. CAPE PRINCE OF WALES, ALASKA. JULY, 1898.

MURDERED BY AN ESKIMO.

FRANK BOYD, A MINER ON KOTZEBUE SD., SHOT BY A CAPE P. OF W. ESKIMO.

THE MURDERER STILL UNPUNISHED.

Last Summer, Frank Boyd engaged three or four natives from the Kotzebue Sd. and Cape P. of Wales tribes to help tow his mining outfit and supplies up the Noon-a-tok river. After a few days absence, Assee-uk the C. P. of Wales native, assisted by one or two Sd natives, returned the boat and supplies to Mr. Samms, the missionary at Cape Blossom, reporting that Boyd had accidently shot himself. By threatening the natives with him, he forced them to substantiate his story. But it soon became known that Assee-uk had murdered him. Borrowing boyd's rifle under pretense of shooting a spotted seal, he deliberately shot him. Assee-uk now claims that the miner had threatened to kil him on the day previous and that he shot him in "self defens." But this flimsy excuse is not believed even by his own people, among whom he has always been known as a "thief" liar and thief. They attribute his crime to his inborn depravity, while the Sd. natives think he wished to avenge the death of his father, who was among the thirteen killed by a whaler in 1877.

It was a great surprise to the natives here and at other settlements along the coast, that the U. S. Cutter, evidently considering it out of its line of duty, made no effort to investigate this murder, or arrest the murderer, when anchored here in Sept. and June.

NEAKLUK RIVER GOLD FIND.

ONE DOLLAR TO THE PAN.

GOLOVIN BAY, ALASKA, May, 10.—Pay dirt, yielding one dollar to the pan on the surface, has been discovered along the Ne-ak-luk River. The few whites within fifty miles of this river have already staked claims. Should they prove as rich as the indications promise, there will undoubtedly be a great rush to the Ne-ak-luk from St. Michael this Summer.

The miners making this discovery, have utilized the tame reindeer throughout the Winter. Many sled journeys have enabled them to examine the country between here and Port Clarence and locate small gold bearing streams, which may prove as rich as any yet discovered in Alaska.

LAPPS AND FINNS COMING.

113 TO BE LANDED AT THE U. S. REINDEER STATION AT UNALAKLEET.

ST. MICHAEL, July 1. - Seventy-eight Laplanders, ten Finns, and twenty-five Norwegians will arrive here about July 15, on the Str. Del Norte. This vessel is chartered by the Bureau of Education, and after discharging its cargo, will proceed to Siberia and carry over what reindeer have been purchased at St. Lawrence Bay by a Gov. trader during the Winter.

The landing of so many Laplanders to look after the small Government herd at Unalakleet, or colonize this part of Alaska is much ridiculed here. The 500 deer with which they started from Lapland, are reported to have sattved to death in S. E. Alaska. According to the papers, these people, on account of their intemperate habits, have given the Gov. officer no little annoyance.

FLED TO THE AMERICAN SIDE.

The Eskimos from the Diomedes Islands bring the news that Messrs. Neily and Cole have been compelled to desert the Reindeer Purchasing station at St. Lawrence Bay, Siberia, and flee to Port Clarence, Alaska, for safety.

This station was established there last Summer by the U. S. Bureau of Education, and stocked with a valuable cargo of barter goods. The Diomedes natives say that the Siberian Non-resists (deers) have been threatening the traders so as to drive them away, and avoid delivering the deer for which they have already received pay. It is reported from whalers, however, that Chuy coast natives bring best the station have opposed and threatened the traders, and that Mr. Neily has paid to 500 of 600 reindeer and unless more of them will be delivered.

A NOVEL RELIEF EXPEDITION COMMANDED BY LIEUT. JARVIS.

THE AMERICAN MISSIONARY ASSOCIATION AND ESKIMOS LOAN THEIR REINDEER TO THE TREAS. DEP'T FOR THE RELIEF OF THE ICE-BOUND WHALERS.

The skill and good judgement displayed by Lieut. D. H. Jarvis who commanded the Novel Overland Relief Expedition to Pt. Barlow, reflects much credit upon the U. S. R. C. Service. Landing Dec. 17, at Cape Vancouver, south of the mouth of the Yukon, with Lieut. Leithoff and Dr. Call who accompanied the Expedition, he secured dog sleds and pushed on to Norton Sd. where he providentially met Mate Tilton who had been three months coming with dog sleds from Pt. Barlow.

He informed Mr. Jarvis that the crews of the wrecked Str., Orca and Freeman, were living ashore, and the Stes., belvedere, Fearless, Newport, Jeanie, and Sch. Rosario were frozen in and their crews living aboard. He also reported that if no Thrilling Experiences of Native Missionaries.

W. T. LOPP, MISSIONARY AT CAPE PRINCE OF WALES.

Through the efforts of Miss Louise E. Forbes, Westboro, Mass., we have been enabled to erect a small mission building at Mit-le-tok, a small settlement about twenty-five miles northeast of here. We have sent Sokweena and wife, our native helpers last year, there to teach those people. He may not be able to teach them much English this winter, but we hope he may be able to teach them something more important. He has a special interest in trying to be the means of saving these Mitletok people because they saved his life last year.

One Saturday morning last December, Sokweena and Netaxite hearing much shooting about two miles away, asked permission to go out on the ice an hour or two and shoot seals. The south wind was from a favorable quarter. When reaching the edge of the shore ice they found the channel full of ice fields drifting northward. In these fields are occasional patches or pools of water in which seals come up to breathe and are shot. Like all the natives who had gone out, earlier, they stepped on the drifting ice and were soon out of sight of the shore ice and away from the sound of the grinding edges of their field against it. Netaxite shot two seals and was preparing to start home, but Sokweena asked him to stay a little longer till he could shoot one. He stayed, but by the time Sokweena had shot his seal they found that the wind was blowing from the northeast and had separated them from the shore ice. They also discovered that they had drifted farther north of the Cape than they had thought. The southeaster blew all night. When all the hunters had returned but these two and the wind had changed, we knew what had happened to them. Their relatives came to us to ask us to hire "doctors" to change the wind so that they might drift in. Their wives spent the night in tearful prayer. We made it a special object of prayer on Sunday and they all believe now that their prayers were heard. It did us good to hear them pray so earnestly. Just about the time we were ending our afternoon prayer meeting they were rescued. Drifting all night on a small floe of ice, when daylight came they discovered they were a long way from land. The wind died out and the scattered ice floes began to pack together. They walked in the direction of the land. They said it seemed as if the floe had been brought together for their special benefit. A long cape extending towards land was formed. When reaching the extreme end of this icy cape they heard the distant howl of a dog and a little later the faint report of a gun. While we had a hard wind at the "Cape" they had a dead calm. Everything was very still and the air seemed just right for carrying sounds long distances. The boys fired their guns. A native heard the report. With the aid of a field glass which one of the Mitletok natives happened to possess, they could see dark objects on the ice. They mustered a boat's crew, paddled out between seven and ten miles and rescued them. Netaxite was suffering considerably. He had broken through the ice twice, wetting his clothing. The next morning the Mitletok natives brought them to the Cape on dog sleds. We gave them what goods we could spare and an order on the Reindeer Station for some flour. We all felt that this was a direct answer to our prayers.

Sokweena helped me with the school here last year until the time the Overland Relief Expedition started. He accompanied this as far as Kotzebue Sound. We shall visit him quite often. It is generally good sledding all winter. This Mission is only about four or five miles from our herd, so some of the herders can go over and assist him every Sunday. There are sixteen children of school age there and eight or ten young men and women who will take an interest in trying to learn to read, and I think all the old ones will attend the Sunday service. It is a splendid location and will be a convenient headquarters for our herders, and is very accessible from here winter and summer. Some friends in Seattle are going to try to support this Eskimo missionary.

We are sadly in need of a minister here or a lady teacher. We shall pray that support for minister or teacher be found, and then the right man or woman be discovered to send up. If this support would be found early, you might be able to find the right persons before May without advertising. No appointment should be made without thorough investigation of the candidate's qualifications for the position.

We enclose you some Bulletins. We are sorry three pages of it are so indistinct. We will send down the broken part of the press to our Brooklyn friends, and ask them to have it replaced and returned next spring.

We have just received word from the party of prospectors at Port Clarence that they have found pay diggings there and have staked claims. Natives bring another report that a large party about forty miles south of Port Clarence, on the coast, are finding "plenty" of gold, and are building houses there and preparing to winter, having sent one of their steamers to St. Michaels for food.

Since the price of work is advancing every year and driftwood is becoming scarcer, due no doubt to its consumption on the Yukon steamers, we have ordered coal for ourselves and Mission next year. If it costs more, we will burn driftwood.

Department of Christian Endeavor.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS IN THE SCHOOL AND ARMY.

BY REV. JAMES BOND, NASHVILLE, TENN.

In many instances the Endeavor movement was introduced into the South by the churches and schools of the American Missionary Association. In every case these churches and schools were among the first to fall in line with the idea and give it a place in the work of saving young people. I know of more than one instance in which the A. M. A. workers, pastors or teachers, were the first to introduce the movement into communities of the South. This is not strange, for the work of the Association in church and school has been among young men and young women. In spirit, at least, the endeavor idea since 1865 has had a large place in all our work. When, therefore, Father Clark came forward with the endeavor idea fully developed and named, our teachers and preachers seized upon it at once and fitted it into the already fully developed plans for the saving of souls. And the movement has spread among us; so much so that there is hardly to be found in the South an A. M. A. school or church without an Endeavor Society.

James Bond

It will be of interest, no doubt, to the good people of the North, who have poured out their treasure in this Southland, to know something of the material of which these societies are composed. And it may be said with truth that the material which goes to make up our societies of young people is largely the product of the A. M. A. in church and school. And when we say this, we do but express in small measure the work of this Association, for it has given in large measure the leaders of the colored people, not only in educational and professional lines, but in religious matters as well. It has produced teachers and preachers, lawyers and doctors, merchants and business men of all kinds. It has trained also a large constituency of intelligent laymen in the Church. It is from these, for the most part, that our Endeavorers come; and it is a goodly company, not so large, yet composing the flower of our young manhood and womanhood, representing the best thought and life to be found among us. Let me mention a few examples. I know of a young man who was sixteen years old before starting out to obtain an education. He walked seventy miles to college, carrying his belongings in a pillowcase hanging from his shoulders and supported by a stick, and driving the entire seventy miles a yearling with a rope about its head. He arrived upon the college ground with fifty cents in his pocket. He entered the primary department, and for thirteen years struggled on, working his way through the entire course, and at the end of that time was graduated. He afterward studied three years in a Northern college, graduating with the degree of B. D. He is now the pastor of one of our churches. Need I tell you that he is an Endeavorer?

Another Endeavorer who has come under my personal observation was converted when a mere boy, and soon after, upon the organization of an Endeavor Society in one of our churches, he was made its first president, a position he held for several years until graduating from one of our schools. He left home to attend one of the leading colleges of the North, fitting himself for the important calling of physician. Reliable report tells us that he stands at the head of a large class of young men, he being the only colored member.

There is a young man I know, the story of whose conversion and entrance into the work of the Church is so full of interest that I give it here. When I first knew him he was a student in one of our colleges, and at the same time a collector for a coal firm in our city (which firm, by the way, was operated by colored men). One day two years ago he called at my study to collect a bill then due. To his very reasonable request I replied, "Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have give I thee, in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth; let us pray." We prayed together and parted, he promising to come to a meeting to be held at the church that night. He came and gave his heart to the Lord. I baptized him and received him into the Church. He joined the Endeavor Society and for some time has been its president. He is in school preparing himself for life—a young man of great hope and promise. Another young man is vice-president. He has been compelled to give up for a time his education, in order that he may care for his aged and widowed mother. The hand of the Lord is upon him, and many of us hope and pray that he may yet preach the unsearchable riches of the gospel of Christ. A few evenings ago, in prayer-meeting, he spoke of his conversion and growth in Christian life. "My Christian life," said he, "has been a growth. I can truly say to-night, if ever I love Thee, my Jesus, 'tis now."

The recent war with Spain brought to the front many heroes, but to my mind none greater than the moral heroes, men and boys who, leaving home and church and society and entering the unwholesome atmosphere of army life, returned unscathed, still loyal to home and to Church and to Christ. A member of my own society comes under this head. Commissioned a lieutenant, he entered army life and spent several months in the service. He had been trained in one of our schools and was an Endeavorer. He set his face like a flint against army life. He broke up swearing in his company, spoke against the evils of the camp. His influence was good. He advised the men to save their earnings. Through his advice many of the boys sent their money home to "mother," and put aside the cup which has been the ruin of so many young men both in the army and out of the army. He was known as "Brother ——." When he entered the army he used tobacco; when he was mustered out he had given up the use of the weed. When he returned home he took up the work in Church and Endeavor Society where he had left it off, holding the respect and esteem of all for his manly course as a soldier.

I said that, for the most part, the members of our societies were young people—young people of the present generation, having been born since 1860 and educated in our schools. But here, as elsewhere, the words "young people" are elastic. It takes in all from ten to seventy. I know of a society having as an active member a person who was a man long before the war "ceastid" (ceased). He was a slave and cannot read a word. He speaks often in the meetings, and is always a welcome visitor. If there is a smile upon the faces of the younger members of the society, when, in Bible language, he exhorts them to be as "wise as serpents and as harmful as doves," it is a smile softened by sympathy and brotherly love, and therefore carries with it no bitterness and causes no pain.

I know of a young woman, a graduate of one of our colleges and an Endeavorer. She endeavors to carry sunshine and joy into the sick room, and to comfort the aged. She is a member of the Visiting Committee. I have known her to sit by the hour and read a good book to a poor, sick girl, or to carry flowers and delicacies to the neglected and suffering. And, as I have seen her noiselessly moving about in the room of the sick, ministering in His Name, I have caught anew the spirit of our great Endeavor movement.

The examples I have mentioned are those that have come under my own observation. They are only a few. Every pastor and every teacher in our work could add to this list until a book would not contain it all. These represent a little army of heroic, intelligent, consecrated Endeavorers. The A. M. A., pointing to this army, can proudly say, "These are my jewels." No true estimate of their influence can be given—it is inestimable. For intelligence, earnestness of purpose and nobleness of aim, a better example than that of the colored Endeavorers of the South can hardly be found. Often the young people make themselves responsible for the Sunday evening service. The Congregational Church in Atlanta, of which the Rev. Mr. Proctor is pastor, is a noteworthy example. Often they carry on mission work in the most needy portions of the city, teach prisoners in jails and penitentiaries, assist in the support of the home church, and give out of their small means to the support of missions at home and abroad; in short, thinking and acting as Endeavorers think and act everywhere, for the spirit of the Endeavor movement is color blind. It is no respecter of places or of peoples. Its distinguishing feature always and everywhere is, Endeavor to do for Jesus' sake.

Obituary.

Miss Ellen B. Scobie was born in Dundee, Scotland, in 1848. Her father brought his family to this country and settled in Everett, Ohio, in 1852. Miss Scobie attended the schools near her home, and taught her first school in a building which stood on the site of a log schoolhouse in which she was once a pupil. After she had taught for several terms, she entered Lake Erie Seminary, at Paynesville, Ohio. She was a hard student, often studying into the small hours of the morning. She completed her course and was graduated in three years. She then taught in Canfield, Ohio, for several years.

She entered the work of the American Missionary Association in the fall of 1885, and was sent to the Ballard School at Macon, Ga., where she labored for fourteen years, with the exception of one year, when she had a year's leave of absence. But she spent the last half of that year teaching in the A. M. A. school at Beaufort, N. C.

She taught through the week of school that ended Friday, April 21, although she went from her schoolroom to her bed each day. The next day she was unable to leave her bed, and in one short week her exhausted nature yielded to the disease, and she passed away on Friday, April 28. She was taken to her home in Everett, Ohio, and buried beside her father. Shortly after her death, a memorial service was held by the colored people, which was largely attended, and which showed how much she was thought of in the community.
